"It is more important that you should have a knowledge of others, than that they should have a knowledge of you."

We see by the picture that our new Commissioner is sworn in by Dan Garges—and that's the long and the short of it.

"Many weary years have passed since I saw the old place last, But memory still clings to it like a charm; In the old familiar place, I can see many a stranger's face, In my father's old armchair down on the farm."

President Coolidge goes back to Plymouth * * * the old, familiar place * * * the vacant chair. * * * Who remembers the old song, that used to be sung 30-odd years ago, and who wrote it? Sounds like Hub Smith. Who remembers?

A distressing incident occurs at Jim Reed's inquest on the Illinois primaries where revelations of crookedness, corruption, ballot-box stuffing, bandits and bribery in Chicago elections shock two Philadelphia reporters.

When Mr. Mellon says that the war debts are a closed issue the wish is father to the thought, but the rationalizing of even so eminent an authority will not convince what William James would call a "thought-minded empiricist." Soon or late a "jack pot" is always opened.

Poincaré's brilliant bill authorizing the Bank of France to inflate the money bag again and purchase gold bullion with French francs at the current rate of exchange has a somewhat vital flaw in it—very little of the world's gold is now held by lunatics.

Government chemist is making an eager search for a new poison that can't be taken out of alcohol and some of these days Congress will get around to taking murder out of prohibition enforcement.

It is comforting to reflect that Commissioner Dougherty's only wards are those into which Washington used to be divided when Our Town glories in heelers and politicians, just like Chicago.

It seems that the Hon. Bill McAdoo doesn't think that the Democratic party is dead enough yet.

Indiana Standard Oil votes the third extra dividend this year. The French franc ought to get itself dissolved by the Supreme Court and fined by Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Polite Paris taxi chauffeurs are to be decorated; and the first person who locates one is also entitled to the Legion of Honor.

Judging by this mournful wail to ye editor from a Haitian jail, President Borno seems to be the official custodian of Louis the Sixteenth's old letter de cachet.

Charlie Chapman while gayly carrying a ladder along an area steps on a banana peel and is hurled through a window, but didn't the reporter get that last name wrong?

Well, here's another deep mystery in Chicago—this time the corpse is found in a well, and the police are said to be looking into it.

The Terrible Tabs will just eat up the Hall-Mills murder today—there's a new "mystery woman" in it, and that's a headline that always stops the show. As old Chaucer remarked, "Mordre wol out, that see we day by day."

"Uneasy lies"—so Shakespeare said—

"The head that wears a crown";

"Uneasy also royal head";

"With other cause to frown:

"A collar with a saw-tooth rim";

"Annoys the Prince of Wales—

"Feels like the headsman's axe to him";

"Always, it never fails!"

The laundry comes home from the wash,

The Prince is stepping out;

He puts his collar on, oh! gosh,

Loud rings the royal shout!

Now hear him through the palace holler:

"Hey! varlet, fetch another collar—

Alas for royal pomp and state,

The laundry knows 'nor low nor great,

But hands to all an equal fate,

In the neck,

By heck!

CHURCH IN MEXICO MAKES NEW OFFER TO RESTORE PEACE

Settlement Is Possible if Priests Gain Rights as Citizens.

PRINCIPLES ASSERTED IN PASTORAL IMPOSED

Growth of Boycott Outside Mexico City Is Causing Alarm in Business.

Mexico City, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—In a general statement to the press tonight the Catholic episcopate declares that a settlement of the religious situation may be accepted by the episcopate if it includes the rights of the Catholic priests as Mexican citizens. This recognition also must include recognition of the principles laid down in the formal letter of the episcopate demanding that the government withdraw its religious regulations.

Recognition of the priests' rights as citizens is construed in some quarters as including a demand for the right to vote in civil elections, which is denied in the present religious clauses of the constitution.

No Armed Uprising.

The hierarchy of the Catholic Church never will approve of armed uprisings, but the church will "go to Calvary" if necessary, in the present religious struggle in Mexico.

Monsignor Pascual Diaz, bishop of Tabasco and secretary of the national episcopate, today told the Associated Press.

Bishop Diaz said:

"The church, being outside and above any political party, can never approve that religion be used as a banner by any political party. Much less will the church approve armed uprising, because it would be detrimental to the people and to the country.

Armed uprisings are headed by ambitious politicians who pursue worldly gains.

The church only approves peaceful, orderly and social action like that undertaken by the league for the defense of religious liberty." (Presumably the economic boycott.)

Boycott Worries Business.

The movement among Catholics to exert the pressure of an economic boycott against the attitude of the Mexican government in enforcing the new religious regulations is plainly worrying business circles.

Although there have been no serious outward evidences of an economic boycott in Mexico City, reports from elsewhere in the republic state that the volume of business has been tangibly reduced in some places.

Uncertainty over what actually is going on in Mexico with reference to the economic boycott has caused a flood of rumors which usually prove unfounded. One of these rumors was that the Bank of Mexico is suffering because of the with-

U. S. Finance Envoy To Poland Drowned

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Warsaw, Aug. 4.—Paul Peyton, of New York, who was spending the week end at Zoppot, near Danzig, went swimming this morning and drowned. The body has not been recovered.

Mr. Peyton was a member of the American financial commission which came to Warsaw to study the advisability of investing American money in Poland.

DROWNS WITH BOY AFTER SAVING THREE

Pastor Is Swept Out With Lad, Who Tries to Rescue Him.

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—The Rev. W. E. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Douglas, Ga., and Archie Bagwell, Douglas boy scout, were drowned late today in the surf off Long Island.

Mr. Smith, who also served as scoutmaster of the Douglas scouts, became exhausted from saving three young boys swept out to sea after a huge wave had wrested their grips from a life line during life saving practice. Young Bagwell, one of the three boys, his companions said, although in a weakened condition, ran to the rescue of Mr. Smith. They were not seen again. The bodies have not been recovered.

MARY BAKER NOT TO WED DUKE'S SON, SAYS FATHER

Girl Who Left McCormick at Church Door Is Courted by Jugoslav Consul.

DOUBT MARRIAGE EARLY

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Alfred L. Baker, stock broker, said here he believed that his daughter, Mary Landon Baker, who left Allister McCormick waiting at the church, had rejected Lord Carmarthen, son of the Duke of Leeds. Mr. Baker said that if Mary had accepted Bojidar Pouritch, former Jugoslav consul in Chicago, she had not informed him of the fact. Mr. Baker, interviewed as to dispatches from London that reported his daughter's engagement to the British peer and to local reports of her engagement to Mr. Pouritch, added that he believes Mary is having too interesting and pleasant life to marry yet.

"Mary will marry when she is really in love and not before," Mr. Baker added.

"I don't care in the least whom Mary marries, as long as she is happy. But I think she would have a greater chance of happiness if she married an American. Americans treat their wives a little differently than do Europeans."

Mr. Baker said that Pouritch had been devoted to Mary for several years. But if Mary is going to marry him, he said, she had not so intimated to him or to her mother.

Colored Witness Is Also Sought; Prosecutor Gets New

Clews From Mysterious Woman Visitor;

Silent 4 Years, She Tells Him.

Special to The Washington Post.

Jersey City, Aug. 4.—Special Prosecutor Simpson late tonight ordered the arrest of Ralph Gorsline, vestryman in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, of which the Rev. Edward E. Hall was pastor, and of Mrs. Nellie Lou Russell, colored woman, whose testimony figured in the earlier investigation of the murder of Dr. Hall and his choir singer.

Late tonight State troopers were racing for Gorsline and Mrs. Russell. Simpson expected no difficulty in finding them.

Senator Simpson made a flying trip to New Brunswick late tonight in the company of a State trooper to make the arrests. The warrants they carried were signed by Judge Cleary.

A soft spoken woman entered the Jersey City office of Mr. Simpson this afternoon and in a few sentences convinced that dynamic official that information she possesses may crack wide open the mystery surrounding the murder of the Rev. E. W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

"She is a more important witness for the prosecution than Mrs. Jane

COOLIDGE RETURNS TO BOYHOOD HOME AT PLYMOUTH, VT.

President's Wife Cheered by Students of Her Alma Mater.

CORDIAL WELCOMES MARK JOURNEY NORTH

Crops Are Discussed by the Executive on Portion of the Trip.

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—President Coolidge came home today to the little village and the farm house that knew him as a boy.

With Mrs. Coolidge, he arrived in midafternoon from the Adirondacks for a visit of several days among familiar scenes, but not until they had stopped at the country cemetery and stood alone at the graves of their son, Calvin, Jr., and of Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the President, did they go to the home which is known throughout the land as the place where Mr. Coolidge took the presidential oath three years ago this week.

The residents of this hill country were out in numbers to give Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge a cordial welcome. Attorney General Sargent, who is passing a vacation in this, his native state, met the special train at Burlington and accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge to Plymouth.

Slowly Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge approached the old farm house and paused on the porch while news photographers recorded the scene. Then they entered the house for a quiet rest among old surroundings. The Attorney General, seen after their arrival, returned to Burlington.

Greeting Characteristic.

The warmth of the greeting here was characteristic of popular receptions given the President during his train ride of more than six hours today across Northern New York State, along the shores of Lake Champlain, and in Vermont. Crowds were gathered at every station and were rewarded repeatedly by the appearance of both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge on the observation platform to acknowledge the applause. While at Burlington, the birthplace of Mrs. Coolidge, the greeting swelled into an ovation for the first lady of the land, with the President standing at her side smiling with delight. Hundreds were gathered on the station platform, including many young women students at the summer school of the University of Vermont, the alma mater of Mrs. Coolidge. The city officially presented to Mrs. Coolidge a bouquet through Mayor C. H. Beecher, while the students sang their college songs and Mrs. Coolidge joined in the singing.

Leaning over the car rail, Mrs. Coolidge grasped the hands of many friends and greeted them by name.

DOUGHERTY FAVERS WIDE PARTICIPATION IN AFFAIRS OF CITY

Join Citizens' Groups, He Urges, When Sworn as Commissioner.

GIVES ALL HIS TIME TO OFFICIAL DUTIES

Induction Presided Over by Rudolph; Many Friends Attend; Council There.

The District government and organized local citizenship, as represented by the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Citizens Advisory Council, took on new bonds of unity yesterday when Proctor L. Dougherty, the new commissioner, was inducted into office in the board room of the District building.

Commissioner Dougherty, who is a member of the council and a delegate to the federation from the Chevy Chase Citizens association, took advantage of the occasion, when all eyes in the city were on him, to fire an opening gun preliminary to an elaborate campaign for increased membership and influence that the citizens' associations plan for the coming autumn and winter. He advised his hearers and other District residents to join the citizens' associations in their respective communities.

"I think a city is best governed where the largest number of citizens have some share in its government," he said.

Cuno H. Rudolph, president of the District board of commissioners, presided over the ceremony and introduced Mr. Dougherty, to whom the oath of office as commissioner was administered by Daniel E. Garces, secretary to the board. He also was sworn in as a member of the public utilities commission.

The function was attended by department heads and employees of the District government, the police court judges and representatives of clubs and other organizations.

There were many floral tributes from friends. The citizens' advisory council occupied the front seats.

Following the induction of the commissioner a brief meeting of the board of commissioners was held. The first item of business granted the Federal government permission to move 200 pounds of T. N. T. from the coast and geodetic survey to the Crowe-Barrett organization.

Mr. Insull declined to say time whether he had given $10,000 to the Crowe-Barrett organization and a like sum to the Deneen group.

INSULL AND CROWE DEFY SENATE PRIMARY

HOPES OF 11 STIRRED BY COMING VACANCY IN ADVISORY COUNCIL

New Member Will Be Chosen From Candidates Defeated Last Winter.

CAMPAIGN PREDICTED FOR MRS. F. H. SNELL

Citizens Federation to Hold Election at Next Regular Meeting in October.

Eleven disappointed candidates for membership in the citizens' advisory council, defeated at the last election in April, will be able to entertain revived hopes, as a result of the appointment of Proctor L. Dougherty to the District board of commissioners.

Mr. Dougherty was a member of the council, from which he will resign at its next meeting, he has said. This leaves a vacancy. The rules of the Federation of Citizens Associations, the delegates to which vacancies must be filled by a supplemental election and that the choice must be confined to the candidates nominated but defeated at the last preceding election.

Among the eleven named and defeated in April was Mrs. Frank H. Snell, to elect whom a determined effort was made. It is predicted that this effort will be renewed. The following are the other ten candidates:

F. M. Cannon, William G. Henderson, R. Z. Mandill, Frank L. Peckham, H. L. Phillips, Ernest H. Pullman, John A. Saul, O. N. Shoemaker, Robert Strobel and Fred S. Walker.

It has not yet been announced when the election will take place. The next regular meeting of the federation is scheduled for the first Saturday in October.

Dougherty Congratulated At Rotarian Luncheon

District Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty a few minutes after he was inducted into office yesterday assumed his role of Rotarian, leaving the District building immediately following his being sworn into office to attend the meeting of the Rotary club in the Willard hotel.

There is a brief speech in reply to the congratulations of fellow Rotarian club members. Mr. Dougherty exposed a bit of his family life, quoting an excerpt from a letter from Mrs. Dougherty.

"I knew you would do something if left alone in Washington," Mrs. Dougherty wrote, and added that "I will not do so again." The club gave its official approval to Mr. Dougherty's appointment through swearing in of the new commissioner as a representative of the District by O. R. Evans. Despite the administering of the oath of office, Mr. Dougherty really was not commissioner until the club had had its part in the ceremony, he was told.

Woman Badly Hurt In Fall From Window

Mrs. Margaret Allen, 24 years old, was seriously injured last night when she fell from a ledge outside the second story window of her home, 1816 Fourteenth street northwest, shortly before 11 o'clock, her head striking the sidewalk.

Mrs. Allen was taken to Emergency hospital by Mrs. Joseph F. Cook, 203 Shepherd street northwest, who was driving past the house in her automobile when she saw the woman fall. Police questioned David Topka, who also lives at 1816 Fourteenth street, and who said he was in the room when Mrs. Allen fell. He said he did not know why Mrs. Allen went out on the ledge and saw only her feet as she fell from sight to the sidewalk.

DOUGHERTY FAVORS WIDE SHARE IN AFFAIRS OF CITY

Dougherty received newspaper reporters in his office for the first time. He said he had no statement of policies to make, not having as yet consulted with any of the department heads who will be under his administrative direction.

He announced that he had resigned his position with the Otis Elevator Co. in order to devote all his time to the office of commissioner. He said that he would attend the next meeting of the citizens' advisory council, of which he is a member, and would there orally present his resignation from that body.

Speech by Dougherty.
Mr. Dougherty's speech, following his taking of the oath of office, was as follows:

"This is, indeed, a great honor that has come to me, and one I sought not, but I have always had the feeling that it is the duty of every citizen, called upon for service, either to the State or nation, that he should contribute for the time being all of his strength to the performance of those duties. One hundred and twenty-six years ago the National Capitol was moved from Philadelphia to this city, which was then but a bare waste, with Alexandria a small village on the south and Georgetown on the west."

"Following that has come the great structural performances that have resulted in the beautiful Washington which we have today. "We have a large Federal program to be carried out, as well as District program, and we must plan the best legislation to meet the needs of the people who reside here in the District, not only through the cooperation of all the residents in the District of Columbia, but all the organizations.

"I think the city is best governed where the larger number of citizens have some share in the government of that city. Especially will that be true in this government. Commissioners, in accepting this great trust, I pledge to you my entire time to the District of Columbia in forwarding all its best interests, and if at the end of my term of office you will proclaim me as generously as you have at the present time, I will go out of this office extremely happy."

Short addresses also were made by Commissioners Rudolph and Bell and Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee.

WAR WIDOW MARRIED TO LEGLESS FIANCE

Mrs. Spear Bride in Wheel-Chair Ceremony in Alexandria Hospital.

Undaunted by the fact that the man she had promised to marry had become a cripple, Mrs. Anna Olander Spear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Olander, of Radnor Heights, Rosslyn, was married yesterday in the Alexandria hospital to Roy Ethelbert Simpson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal church, in the presence of a brother and sister of the bridegroom and the hospital attendants, while Simpson sat in a wheelchair.

On the night of July 13, Simpson, who was employed as a brakeman at the Potomac freight yards, was struck by a freight car which was being switched on the "hump," and both legs were so badly crushed it was necessary to amputate them. His marriage to Mrs. Spear had been set for yesterday and, in spite of the fact that he will be confined to the hospital at least a month longer, was decided to carry out the original arrangements, and the ceremony was performed at the Chase neighborhood recently.

Mrs. Spear's first husband was a world war veteran, and died from the effects of being gassed, in France.

WOMAN'S ASSAILANT BELIEVED CAPTURED

Rockville Police Arrest Negro on Charge of Intent to Kill Mrs. Hancock.

William Murray, alias John Ballay, 27 years old, colored, of Raleigh, N. C., is in jail at Rockville, charged with assault with intent to kill Mrs. Hancock, wife of Maj. W. F. Hancock, 707 Bradley lane. He also is charged with attempting to rob her.

Maj. R. B. Lawrence and James B. True, of Battery Park, special deputy sheriffs, arrested him near Chevy Chase yesterday morning, they having been tipped off that he was at work there. According to Sheriff Clay Plummer, the man has admitted his guilt.

Murray worked at the Hancock home last Christmas eve, and when Mrs. Hancock was about to pay him for the day's work he is said to have struck her on the head with a piece of revolver and then seriously injured her that she was under treatment in Walter Reed hospital for many weeks. Murray got away at the time and his whereabouts remained a mystery until his return to the Chevy Chase neighborhood recently.

Congress Heights Pool Opened Today

Congress Heights Citizens association will open its bathing pool at Camp Simms at 9 o'clock today.

The pool is owned by the District national guard, but was loaned to the citizens' association last summer and the same arrangement is being made this summer. The pool will be open daily from 9 to 11 o'clock and from 2 o'clock to 6 o'clock. A watchman will be in attendance.

A. M. E. ZION CONVENTION PRAISED BY GOVERNORS

Telegrams, Expressing Interest in Work, Received by Gathering Here.

CHURCH TASK DISCUSSED

The church school convention of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion denomination last night at the John Wesley church was addressed by the Rev. D. L. Black, of Cincinnati, who spoke on the convention theme, "The Educational Task of the Church." Dr. H. H. Jackson, chairman of the executive committee, presided.

Praise for Council.
Your local organizations elect the best representatives to the Federation of Citizens Association, which meets here in this board room semimonthly throughout the winter and threshes out by friendly argument the extensive problems brought before it. I am fortunate in being a member of the Citizens' Advisory council, a body of nine men who have given of their strength to consider the municipal problems.

Expressing interest in the work of the convention, greetings and best wishes telegrams were received from Gov. Len Small of Illinois, Gov. Trumbull of Massachusetts, Gov. Thomas G. McLeod of South Carolina, Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Gov. Al Smith of New York.

Following a memorial service this morning, participated in by J. W. Peacock, of Cleveland; W. E. Woodward, of Indianapolis; Va.; F. W. M. Butler, of Elizabeth City, N. C.; Rev. G. W. Mize, of Raleigh, N. C.; W. H. Hall, of Albemarle, N. C.; Miss Sarah L. Jenifer, and Miss M. L. Mason, addresses will be made by Dr. W. W. Matthews, secretary of foreign missions, and Carter G. Woodson, editor of the Journal of Negro History.

Headquarters Detectives James Springman and George Darnall and police of the First precinct, who investigated the robbery, were unable to discover any clues which would lead to the identity of the thief. The safe had been locked Tuesday evening by Alfred Higbie, 1749 Irving street northwest, senior member of the firm.

The parade will march north on Fourteenth street to U. east on U to Sixth street, south on H street to Tenth, south on Tenth to Pennsylvania Avenue, west on Pennsylvania Avenue to Fifteenth, south to the Ellipse, and disband. It will be reviewed by bishops and general officers of the Zion denomination from the steps of the District building.

There will be no bands of music in the procession, but delegates to the convention will vie with each other in inspirational singing all along the line. Women will be costumed, principally in white, with streamers and sashes, and will carry banners of the conferences which they represent.

Morning watch meetings at 7:45 o'clock will continue daily at the John Wesley church throughout the session, followed by leadership training conferences at 8 o'clock under direction of Dr. Jacob W. Powell, of Boston.

St. Elizabeth's Patient Released by Court

Thomas J. Schram, a former sailor, a patient in St. Elizabeth's hospital for the insane, yesterday was released from the asylum by Justice Siddons in the District Supreme court despite a warning by Dr. William A. White, superintendent of the hospital, that Schram was dangerous. Justice Siddons ruled that Schram had not been properly committed to the institution.

Two other patients also sought release from the institution, both of whom were described by Dr. White as dangerous and liable to violence at any moment if they were freed.

Raiding a cigar store at 25 H street northwest last night, police of the Sixth precinct found more than 100 men engaged in playing cards, they reported. Lewis Hurwitz, 25 years old, 450 R street northwest, and Ernest Dorney, 26 years old, 231 Eighteenth street northwest, were arrested and charged with permitting gaming. They were released after depositing $50 collateral.

The players made a wild scramble for the doors and windows when the police entered, according to Precinct Detective Michael Dowd. The police picked $26 in small change from the floor, where it had been dropped by the players, Dowd said.

The raiding party was led by Lieut. Gustav Lawton, Detective Dowd and Precinct Detective J. Flaherty.

Traffic Jam Neglect Assailed by McMahon

While traffic officers are closely patrolling outlying highways for infractions of the speed laws, traffic law enforcement in the more congested areas is being neglected, in Judge McMahon's opinion.

Judge McMahon expressed himself on this point in traffic court last night in the course of a case involving excessive speed on Massachusetts avenue hill. "How many officers are detailed on Massachusetts avenue anyway?" he asked the policeman in the witness box. "I wish I could get some of you fellows down into the congested areas where so much reckless driving is going on."

$1,100 STOLEN FROM SAFE IN REAL ESTATE OFFICE

Detectives Baffled by Robbery of Higbie & Richardson Cash Drawer.

COMMITTED DURING NIGHT

The theft of $1,100 from the safe in the office of the Higbie & Richardson real estate firm, 1816 Fifteenth street northwest, was revealed yesterday morning when members of the firm opened the safe. It is believed that the robbery was committed Tuesday night.

Headquarters Detectives James Springman and George Darnall and police of the First precinct, who investigated the robbery, were unable to discover any clues which would lead to the identity of the thief. The safe had been locked Tuesday evening by Alfred Higbie, 1749 Irving street northwest, senior member of the firm.

Just how far the remaining $65,000 will go in helping needy mothers is problematical. The appropriation of $75,000 for the mothers' pension, not more than $10,000 may be used for personnel.

Applications which are now coming in are being handled by various departments of the board. They are finally to be grouped, however, and turned over to the department dealing directly with them.

The assistance given, under the terms of the legislation, will be home care of children under 16 years of age. No uniform rate will apply, but each case is to be judged on its individual merits.

MOTHERS' PENSION PLAN IN EFFECT NEXT MONTH

Welfare Board Maps Details of Giving the Assistance Law Provides.

MANY FILE APPLICATIONS

The mothers' pension plan, created by the last session of Congress, will become operative early next month, it was learned yesterday.

Plans for making it effective are being formulated by the board of public welfare, and preliminary scores of applications for assistance have come in. John Joy Edison, W. W. Millan and Mrs. Hugh S. Cummings have been named the standing subcommittee to administer the pensions fund under the supervision of the board.

They have already made a preliminary study of the local situation and intend to make final arrangements at a meeting soon.

All three are now out of the city.

In their absence, a clerical staff is being built up. It is to be composed mostly of investigators to look into the claims of applicants. Under the terms of the appropriation of $75,000 for the mothers' pension, not more than $10,000 may be used for personnel.

Just how far the remaining $65,000 will go in helping needy mothers is problematical. The appropriation of $75,000 was a reduction of $25,000, which had been estimated as necessary for the first year's operation of the plan.

Applications which are now coming in are being handled by various departments of the board. They are finally to be grouped, however, and turned over to the department dealing directly with them.

The assistance given, under the terms of the legislation, will be home care of children under 16 years of age. No uniform rate will apply, but each case is to be judged on its individual merits.

MISSOURI VICTORY OF WETS HELD AID TO SMITH CHANCES

McAdoo Plans Drive to Capture Democratic Nomination on Dry Issue.

FAVORITE SON STATES FIRST TO BE INVADED

Effort Also Will Be Made to Abolish Two-Thirds Vote and Unit Rule.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Coincident with wet victories in Missouri in both Republican and Democratic primaries and the increasing chance which Gov. Al Smith may thereby have to add this State's eighteen electoral votes to his preconvention calculations, comes news that William Gibbs McAdoo is planning a new drive for his own candidacy as Democratic standard bearer in 1928.

The McAdoo program, which calls for an early start and a vigorous speaking tour, has been framed at recent conferences between Mr. McAdoo and his friends in New York, and is designed to offset Gov. Smith's growing strength in Democratic States and at the same time provide a working basis for the plan to obtain a majority for McAdoo on the early ballots at the convention.

Vigorous Program Planned.

Features of the program, as tentatively agreed upon, are understood here to be as follows:

First—McAdoo is no longer to keep out of the States having "favorite sons" as candidates, but will invade these States and endeavor to round up delegates.

Second—Efforts are to be made to abolish the two-thirds vote at Democratic conventions but maintain the unit rule under which State delegations vote as a unit for a particular candidate even when some

French Badge of Merit For Polite Taxi Men

Paris, Aug. 4 (By A. P.). Prudent and polite taxicab drivers are to have their merits recognized by a badge, under a scheme inaugurated by L'Auto, which has obtained the approval of the big taxicab companies.

Each passenger is requested to note his chauffeur's ability, and whether or not he toots carefully at crossings, slows up when he ought to and attempts no acrobatic stunts with other vehicles. The passenger should take the driver's name and address, also the number of his cab, if they find he is worthy of recognition, and forward them to L'Auto.

When a driver has been cited sufficiently in this way, he will receive a distinctive badge to wear on his arm or fix on his windshield.

of the delegates favor another candidate.

Third—Organized efforts are to be made to warn Southern states and dry States that the only way to head off Gov. Smith is to rally behind the McAdoo banner before it is too late.

Action Result of Experience.

The plan of Mr. McAdoo to start right out after favorite-state States, invade them and urge his own candidacy, is partly the result of his experience in the New York 1924 convention. Here, he refrained from interfering with desires of States having favorite sons to vote for, and he made no advance efforts to dissuade the States from following that course. As a result, Alabama's 24 votes at the convention were cast with monotonous regularity for Oscar Underwood and Virginia's 24 went to her favorite son, Senator Carter Glass. Mr. McAdoo reached his high-water mark of 530 on the sixty-ninth ballot. Had either the Alabama or Virginia votes been added to this, he would have had a majority which might have led to the required two-thirds or which would have been sufficient to nominate him had the majority rule prevailed.

The McAdoo followers now reason that if the favorite-state States can be captured in advance of the convention and if the dry sentiment can be sufficiently aroused it may be easy to come within striking distance of the necessary number of votes to bring about Mr. McAdoo's nomination.

Leaders Divided on Unit Rule.

There appears to have been differences of opinion in the conferences held by the McAdoo supporters as to the wisdom of maintaining the unit rule. One faction, led by Senator George H. Williams, of St. Louis, incumbent, had won an easy victory over his two Republican opponents, David M. Proctor, of Kansas City, and Blodgett Priest, of St. Louis. Representative Harry B. Hawes, of St. Louis, was an easy winner. All five Missouri representatives who were opposed for renomination were victorious by wide margins.

The fight on Smith and Ryan was made in the hope of clearing the way for obtaining a charter for the Klan in Kansas. The attorney general and secretary of state are ex-officio members of the State charter board, and constitute a majority.

Ryan has voted consistently against granting a charter to the organization, and Smith, avowed antiklan, asked the voters to consider his candidacy a referendum on the Klan question.

The only race in doubt was that for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in which the lead has shifted back and forth between former Governor Jonathan M. Darnell and Donald Muir, young attorney of Anthony.

Returns from 1,581 precincts out of 2,641 in the State gave Muir, 16,225; Davis, 15,584.

Seven of the eight representatives

Democrats and five Republicans, apparently were renominated. Six Republicans are contesting for the toga cast aside by Representative Tinker in the Seventh district, with the early vote fairly evenly divided.

Senator Charles Curtis, floor leader, and Gov. Ben S. Paulen, Republicans, had little opposition for renomination.

Missouri Dries Beaten.

St. Louis, Aug. 4 (By A. P.).—Rolling up pluralities ranging from approximately 30,000 to 55,000, candidates strongly supported by the Antisaloon league and W. C. T. U. were nominated for United States senator by both the Democrats and the Republicans.

Henry J. Johnston, of Perry, reported to have Klan support, held a lead of more than 10,000 votes over William M. Darnell for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

In the Republican contest for governor, returns from 1,296 precincts gave W. J. Otjen, of Enid, a margin of 177 votes over Omer K. Benedict, of Tulsa. United States Senator C. W. Harrel, Republican, was renominated by a large plurality.

Montana Returns.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 4 (By A. P.).—Montana's two representatives, John M. Evans, Democrat, and Scott Leavitt, Republican, apparently were nominated in yesterday's primary election on the face of returns from half of the precincts in their districts.

Leavitt will be opposed by Mayor Harry Mitchell, of Great Falls, who won the Democratic nomination in the Second district. With two counties unreported, Ronald Higgins, of Missoula, had a small margin over his dry opponent, S. R. Foot, of Helena, for the Republican nomination in Representative Evans' district.

POINCARE TOBACCO AND SINKING FUND PLANS APPROVED

Committee of Deputies Votes
Measures Which Go to Chamber Today.

GREAT INTERNAL LOAN TO BE LAUNCHED SOON

Bitter Fight Waged Over Giving Bank of France Control of Foreign Exchange.

Paris, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Premier Poincare today succeeded in having the finance committee of the chamber of deputies approve two of his most important measures for rehabilitating the franc. These were a bill creating a sinking fund for the retirement of the national defense and treasury bonds and a bill authorizing the turning over of the government tobacco monopoly to a private company.

The committee stood 12 in favor of the bills to 7 against, the Socialists abstaining. The bills will now come up for open discussion in the chamber tomorrow and Premier Poincare expects to have them adopted by tomorrow night.

Franc Rises Steadily.

The premier announced that as soon as the situation permits, probably at the end of September, the government will launch a great internal loan with the purpose of consolidating the internal debts and stabilizing the franc.

The franc rose steadily today, gaining ten points against the pound and more than two and a half against the dollar. There was some surprise at the strength of the franc, in view of the government's third bill, now before the finance committee authorizing the Bank of France to issue notes for the purchase of foreign currencies.

This bill caused a stiff fight in the finance committee between Leon Blum, the socialist leader, and Premier Poincare, the former characterizing the bill as "inflation, pure and simple."

Powers Granted Bank.

The bill authorizes the Bank of France to purchase gold bullion and stable foreign currency with French francs at the current exchange. This has hitherto been forbidden by law in France, except when the buying was done at the pre-war rate of exchange.

The ultimate aim of the bill is to enable the Bank of France to mobilize a mass of foreign currencies with which it can be in position to maneuver in defense of the franc. Premier Poincare, replying to M. Blum's criticism, insisted that since the additional circulation of the Bank of France would be guaranteed by the foreign gold basic currencies purchased, the transaction would not amount to inflation.

American in Mexico Held in Rebel Trade

Mexico City, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Simeon S. Fuller, an American resident in Mexico City, has been placed in jail on a technical charge of forgery. His arrest was due to alleged falsification of receipts in connection with his sale of a large number of automobile tires to one of the revolutionary factions several years ago.

The charge against Mr. Fuller was made by one of the leaders of the factions to which the tires were sold. No charges are made that he participated in the revolt.

Spanish King Grateful For Coolidge Message

Duggan Plane Found; Cobham at Koepang

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—A dispatch to La Nacion from Porto Alegre says Bernardo Duggan, Argentine aviator, and his companions, have been found by a searching party in the vicinity of the Bay of Mastardas, about 70 miles north of Rio Grande do Sul. Duggan's plane disappeared between Ararangua and Rio Grande do Sul Monday. He is flying from New York to this city.

HONORED BY NOTED GROUP

Oxford, England, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—The Prince of Wales tonight came back to the scenes of his student days and delivered an address before the famed British association—a formidable audience of grayheads made up of the most learned minds in the field of science in England.

The prince, who was making his presidential address, is the first member of the royal family to be honored with this distinction since 1899, when his great-grandfather, Prince Consort Albert, held the post.

The prince spoke on the relationship between science and the state. He indicated his belief that science is the key to prosperity and that science might play the part of the world's industrial healer.

He declared that if civilization was to go on, it could only progress along a road of which the foundations had been laid by scientific thought and research.

Furthermore, he said, he had come to realize that the future solution of virtually all domestic and social difficulties would only be found by scientific methods.

The prince kept a serious face, although his hearers laughed at one little touch of humor when he cited the advance of science in the laundry business.

"This will be good news to those of us who may have suffered or even may be suffering tonight from the torture of a collar which comes back from the wash with its edge like a surgical saw," he said.

Mishap.

Auburn, Maine, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—One passenger and a mail clerk were injured early today when the Bar Harbor express from Washington and New York was derailed a short distance east of the local station of the Maine Central railroad and not far from the Androscoggin river bridge.

The train consisted of four sleeping cars, a coach, smoker and express, baggage and mail cars. All left the rails, but remained upright except for a combination baggage and mail car and a baggage car which tipped over a 25-foot embankment.

Mail Clerk H. W. Foote of Canton, sustained a broken nose when his car took its plunge, and Mrs. Pearl Mitchell, Harrington, Maine, riding in the coach, received injuries to one leg. The 88 passengers continued their journey in a special train. The accident is thought to have been caused by a broken brake rigging.

Head of Reichsbank To Meet U.S. Banker

Berlin, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, is to meet Benjamin Strong, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, at some point outside Germany at Mr. Strong's request, it is officially announced. The announcement adds that active participation in a scheme for stabilization of the franc is out of the question for Germany.

Dr. Schacht at present is in Holland, where he is said to be visiting his family. He planned to return next week.

4 THE WASHINGTON POST: THURSDAY, AUGUST 5, 1926.

"I Wanted Adventure"

The Story of a Girl Who Craved Thrills

SOMETIMES Meg wonders if she was not born with a wild and reckless strain in her blood. That is the only way she can account for the mad craving for excitement that tortured her soul at twenty-one.

Clerking in stores, typing, library work, newspaper reporting, teaching school—Meg found them all insufferably commonplace and dull.

She was dissatisfied and restless. Adventure! That was the thing she wanted. If only something would happen to give her a real "kick" out of life!

Then something did. Betty, a former school-girl friend gone to Florida, revisited the little Indiana town after an absence of two years.

"It's frightfully thrilling down there," she told Meg. "I have a peachy job, meet scads of men, and have good times galore. Come back with me. You'll have the time of your life."

Today, Meg would give all she has if she had deafened her ears to this siren call of the South, and had listened to the sober advice of her parents and friends. They said: "You will be among strangers down there, where the cost of living is high, and good jobs are scarce. Don't make this foolish move."

But as she pictured in her mind the sunlit beaches, the warm skies, the romantic lure of the soft, tropic nights—the hazard and uncertainty of it all, her enthusiasm grew the more. Thus it happened that a few days later she found herself installed in Betty's apartment in the Florida city and the strangely mixed adventure of looking for a job and "keep-drives" began.

If anyone had foretold the terrible cyclone of events that was to sweep her into its clutches before many days had passed, she would have blazed with incredulous fury and scorn. "Such things don't happen," she would have declared.

But Meg had much to learn—and the tragic manner in which she was to acquire her knowledge of life and men will haunt her memory as long as she lives. Starting with what seemed a perfectly innocent friendship with a man she thought was the soul of honor, she soon found herself confronted by one of the most hideous situations a girl was ever compelled to face.

Except for a disguising of names, Meg gives a vividly frank account of her dreadful experience under the title, "I Wanted Adventure," in the September issue of True Story Magazine. It is a thrilling, startling, heart-throbbing narrative. And it drives home a powerful lesson that no reader will ever forget.

Other Thrilling Features in September True Story Are:

"She Had to Learn"—It was a fast pace that Ruth and her crowd set at college. "Being broad-minded," Ruth called it, to justify the gay round of dances, slum parties, week-end parties, with their petting, drinking and general hilarity. "What's the harm?" they said. Ruth found out "the harm" when it was too late. You will be astounded by the revelations in this true-life narrative.

"Lies"—Grace was very much in love with David Jordan. Unfortunately, he was already engaged to another girl. But she refused to be-

Clergyman Recommends True Story to Parents

Auburn, Rhode Island

Dear Sir:

It is a pleasure to say a word or two in commendation of that wonderful magazine "True Story." I have had the opportunity a great many times to read it through, having seen it at a friend's home, and each time the thought came to me that this magazine is just the thing we all need in this present day. Our young people are daily passing through the crisis, and this young mind is not like the mind of a few years ago. All the young people are anxious to know the real experiences of others, and they certainly get it in a clean, decent, moral way in True Story.

True Story has a way about it that is different from all others—it leaves nothing to the imagination, it goes right to the point and leaves a firm impression behind it, doing away with all the cordial and less a picture of all that is beautiful and wholesome. I find myself time and time again, recalling the conclusions and experiences as expressed in the stories, and applying them to the problems of the young people who come to me for help, and also to the youngsters in my own household. You are certainly to be congratulated in attaining to such a position in the literary world, because your problem is difficult, but your magazine comes the nearest to the correct solution of any that I have seen. I毫不犹豫地 recommend it to mothers and fathers who have the peculiar problem of young men and young women on their hands.

Respectfully,

Rev. William H. Jordan.

"I was like a bird charmed by a snake; I could not move, and my breath came in moaning gasps. Then I saw the headlights of the car approaching. I shrieked and started madly down the road."

MT. RAINIER FAVORS PLAN OF EXTENDING RHODE ISLAND AVE.

Mayor and Council Formally Approve Project and Map Action.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO AID RAISE $125,000

Supporters of Proposal Sure All Affected Will Give Their Sanction.

Approval of the plan of the Maryland State roads commission for extension of Rhode Island avenue northeast straight through Mount Rainier and Brentwood to Hyattsville, Md., was voted by Mayor Kenneth Bovay and members of the town council of Mount Rainier at a special meeting in the mayor's office last night.

J. Enos Ray and T. Howard Duckett outlined the roads commission's plan for extension of the avenue and two committees were appointed to work with similar committees of other towns along the route of the proposed extension.

Benjamin R. Sherwood, Louis Rosenfeld and Dr. Vernon J. Lohr were named a committee to aid in securing right of way for the extension of the road.

Perry Boswell, H. L. Stanforth and E. H. Shinn were named the committee on finance to aid in raising the $125,000 which is to be lent the State for year to carry out the project. It is estimated that the total net cost to those lending the money will be approximately $7,500 interest they must pay for the money they borrow to lend the State.

Approved in Hyattsville.

Approval of the plan was given by Hyattsville officials and business men at a special meeting Monday night, and Dr. H. T. Willis, president of the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce, yesterday announced the addition of B. F. Edwards, of Washington, owner of a gasoline filling station on Rhode Island avenue northeast, to the finance committee of Hyattsville.

The plan will be presented residents of Brentwood and North Brentwood at a special meeting tomorrow night in the office of the mayor of Brentwood. Supporters of the extension plan are confident of its general approval and quick adoption by all of the property owners affected.

Property owners of Hyattsville held a special meeting last night but took no action. They are interested in addition, in the construction of a viaduct across the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, which cross the Washington-Baltimore boulevard at Hyattsville.

Mrs. J. J. Hill Suing For Big Tax Return

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 4 (By A. P.).—Suit for the return of a tax of $3,141,677.04 paid to the government on the estate of Mrs. Mary T. Hill, widow of James J. Hill, has been filed in Federal court against the collector of internal revenue for Minnesota.

The complaint alleges that the money was collected illegally by the government and that part of the tax, $1,130,616.08, was collected under duress.

The contention is made by the plaintiff that the government, because of a deficiency in the law, is unable to collect a tax on estates of persons who died between November 23, 1920, and November 23, 1921. Mrs. Hill died November 22, 1921.

JEFFERSON PICTURED AS THOUGHT MOLDER

J. W. Davis Tells Virginia's Bar His Influence Is Felt Daily.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 4 (By A. P.).—Thomas Jefferson has influenced the daily thought of Americans more than any other man in the country's history, John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate in 1924, said in an address today before the Virginia bar association.

"He it was who formulated, defended and made victorious that social and political philosophy of individualism and equality by which America has lived, and to which all American statesmen of whatever party since his day have given allegiance," said Mr. Davis.

"Without Washington America could not have won through the trial that beat her birth. Without Hamilton she might have perished in the quagmire of false finance. Without Marshall the Constitution might have proved a rope of sand, but the social life of Americans means thereby the feelings they entertain one toward another and the hopes they cherish for themselves, could not be what it is today without the teachings of Thomas Jefferson."

The ship would be completed within 360 days after letting of the contract.

Los Angeles Moored To Ship Off Coast

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4 (By A. P.).—The United States naval dirigible Los Angeles, which is on a three-day flight to test radio stations on the New England coast, was moored safely to the U. S. S. Patoka at 7:40 o'clock tonight. A thick haze and resulting low visibility made slow work of the mooring, but the making fast was accomplished without untoward incident.

The Patoka lay tonight in the sheltered upper bay just east of Prudens Island. The Los Angeles left her hangar at Lakewood, N. J., this morning.

FACING JAIL, INDICTED ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 4 (By A. P.).—L. P. Summers, of Abingdon, Va., former United States district attorney for the Western district of Virginia and under a 15-month sentence at the Atlanta penitentiary, today was indicted in the Federal district court here on a charge of misappropriating $6,895 as guardian of 11-year-old Frankie Hale Estridge.

Summers, whose case now is before President Coolidge after the Supreme Court of the United States refused to review the evidence in his conviction for certifying to the correctness of false accounts, was charged in the indictment today with "unlawfully and feloniously embezzling" funds allotted the child under the war risk insurance bill and as compensation.

While neither District Attorney J. C. Shafer, nor Assistant District Attorney Clarence Gentry would comment on the Summons case, the story of the poverty of the young girl, made an orphan when her father, Charles L. Estridge, was killed in the World War, was told by her grandmother, Mrs. Violet Gwin.

A letter received in Paris yesterday by his brother, Oscar Maurice, who owns night clubs in Paris, Maurice said he and his bride and dancing partner, Miss Eleanor Ambrose, of Kansas City, have bought a dairy farm in Switzerland, and are never going to dance another step unless all the cows go dry and force them to.

Commenting on Maurice's decision Eleanor Hughes Basualdo who preceded Maurice as partner, told the correspondent that she prefers children to cows, adding, "I wish Maurice luck. He has had a lot of experience with cows since he started giving dancing lessons."

5 PRISONERS NOW HELD IN MURDERS AT REVIVAL

Arrest Two Brothers in the Slaying of Preacher and Choir Singer.

DOMESTIC STRIFE AIRED

MORGANTOWN, Ky., Aug. 4. (By A. P.)—Two more arrests in the killing of the Rev. Archibald W. Moss, evangelist, and Mrs. Jerome Johnson, choir singer, at a revival meeting Monday night, were made this afternoon and tonight.

Cecil Barrow, county attorney, was advised that Stude Gary, 23, had been arrested near the Gary schoolhouse, scene of the shooting, and was being brought here for questioning. Gary was inside the schoolhouse when the shooting occurred.

Heavily armed, Delbert Gary, 30, a brother of Stude Gary, was surprised in a vacant house at Brooklyn, Ky., five miles west of the schoolhouse, scene of the shooting, and placed under arrest. He denied he was implicated in the shootings.

His arrest brought to five the number now held in connection with the shootings.

The three youths, Clifton Wilson, 21; his brother, Fred Wilson, 17, and a brother-in-law, Wesley Phelps, who were arrested Wednesday, have been released except for deposit in custody in the crime.

It was learned today that the evangelist, a member of the Church of Christ, had held two of three revivals near the county line before going to the Gary schoolhouse. He had been in Butler county about five weeks.

J. T. Lee, of Oakgrove, Grayson county, said today that the minister had been trying to get his wife, Edna Lee Moss, 16, to divorce him. Mrs. Moss married the preacher when she was 14 years old, and they separated several months later.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—President Coolidge today was presented with a fishing license by the Vermont fish and game department.

PRESIDENT ARRIVES AT CHILDHOOD HOME

Others in the crowd gave attention to the President and shouted "Speech, speech," but he declined with a good-natured shake of the head.

John Coolidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, who is a student at the summer school of the University of Vermont, was unable to go to the train at Burlington, being detained by classroom work in taking special courses in economics to obtain credits for his regular course at Amherst college, which he could not obtain last year because of a condition in French the year before.

Heavily armed, Delbert Gary, 30, a brother of Stude Gary, was surprised in a vacant house at Brooklyn, Ky., five miles west of the schoolhouse, scene of the shooting, and placed under arrest. He denied he was implicated in the shootings.

ARRESTS RICH BEGGAR; IS HIMSELF IN CELL

The special train of six cars left Gabriels, N. Y., near the summer White House at 8 o'clock this morning and ran through Malone and Rouses Point, N. Y., close to the Canadian border, to Burlington, Rutland and Ludlow, where the presidential party entered automobiles and drove 12 miles through the hill country to Plymouth.

Not all the attention of the President, however, was taken by responding to popular receptions, as he discussed for more than an hour during the trip agricultural conditions in this State with J. F. Carrigan, superintendent of the Ogdensburg division of the Rutland railroad.

"Hello, daddy," said Martin. "Don't say 'Hello, daddy,'" his mother interrupted. "Say good-by."

"Good-by, daddy," said the child. The receiver clicked. Martin rated the receiver hook except but the first cut off.

Millman, told the police he married in 1922, but his wife had left him in 1925, and started an action for separation, asking custody of Martin and $25 a week alimony. Eight months later Millman sued for divorce, but the jury decided in his wife's favor. More litigation followed and recently the wife had brought a new action, which was still pending, asking increased alimony.

TUESDAY'S PRIMARIES.

The renomination on Tuesday of United States Senator Curtis, of Kansas; Harrel, of Oklahoma, and Williams, of Missouri, all Republicans, was a foregone conclusion. Mr. Curtis, leader of the majority in the Senate, holds such an influential position in national affairs that his State could not afford to lose the benefit of his services; and his popularity at home is well illustrated by the fact that he was virtually unopposed in the primary. No national issue seems to have been so prominent in Kansas as to give rise to unusual activity either for or against Senator Curtis.

Senator Harrel's record in the Senate has met with the cordial approval of Oklahoma Republicans. That he was a stalwart opponent of the league of nation's so-called world court and voted against it on the final roll-call was not displeasing to his constituents.

Senator Williams, of Missouri, has served only a short time, but has impressed himself upon the Senate and the country. He, also, is a strong opponent of the world court. It is to be noted that the Democrats of Missouri, in nominating Harry B. Hawes for the United States Senate, have insured the vote of Missouri against all further attempts to involve this country in the court set up by the league of nations, for Mr. Hawes, although originally favoring the court, later came out strongly in opposition to it. Both Senator Williams and his rival are wet, and their dry opponents at the primary were badly beaten.

In Kansas, Virginia, Montana, West Virginia and Oklahoma the incumbent Republican and Democratic members of Congress were renominated. Representatives Leavitt and Evans, of Montana, Republican and Democratic, respectively, were opposed by wet candidates, but they won by substantial majorities. The Ku Klux Klan figured in the State contests in Kansas and Oklahoma. The candidates opposing the Klan in Kansas are apparently victorious, while in Oklahoma, Henry S. Johnson, Democrat, alleged by his opponents to be a Klan candidate, has been nominated for governor. Elmer Thomas, Democratic representative in Congress from the Sixth district of Oklahoma, has been nominated for the United States Senate.

The vote in some of these States was very light, notably in Virginia. National questions were discussed, but the results as a whole afford little information as to the attitude of the country at large on the questions that are now expected to loom up as leading issues in 1928.

Ah, well; if game is extinct, so is the actual need of it.

TRANSPORTATION COSTS.

The recent decision of the Attorney General in the matter of including or excluding transportation costs in ascertaining the difference in cost of production between domestic and foreign commodities, as provided in the flexible sections of the tariff act of 1922, has been made public.

The Attorney General settles a dispute among members of the tariff commission as to whether transportation is an item of cost or comes under the phrase, "any other advantages or disadvantages in competition." The act recites what facts are to be taken into consideration in measuring the difference in cost of production, and adds the words above.

The Attorney General decides that transportation costs come under this head, on the theory that transportation is an item in the sum total of competition. The effect of this decision is to widen the spread between domestic and foreign cost of production when domestic and foreign commodities meet in the American market, the only place where the tariff law applies.

Common people have one advantage. They can eat an ear of corn the nice messy way.

THE PHILIPPINES.

While the question of ultimate disposition of the Philippine Islands was being discussed at the Williamsburg school of politics, practical Americans were discussing with President Coolidge the possibilities of growing rubber trees in the Philippines for the benefit of American consumers.

Theorists insist that the United States must give up the Philippines in order to establish permanent peace in the islands and live up to the letter and spirit of the so-called Jones law, but practical Americans are demonstrating that a surrender of the Philippines will not bring peace, but turmoil; and that such a course will deprive the United States of an opportunity of making itself independent of all other countries in the matter of a supply of rubber.

Business and economic welfare, not sentiment, must solve the Philippine question. The welfare of the Filipinos themselves, not the ambitions of a few politicians in the islands, must determine the course to pursue. It is evident that if the United States should free itself of the Philippines the Filipinos will not have independence, but will be controlled by some great power.

Following a proposed amendment of the land laws by the Philippine legislature, and investments of American capital, the Philippines may turn out to be a veritable gold mine in the form of rubber, to supply the American demand. This one plan of development should dispose of the Philippine question once and for all. In the meantime the Filipinos will have home rule, safe under the American flag.

Our off-hand guess is that Anapias got a living by writing resort literature.

AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS.

In 1925-26 the gross income of the farmers and growers of the United States was $12,415,000,000, as compared with $12,003,000,000 in 1924-25. This income was made up of cash sales amounting to $9,891,000,000, and farm products valued at $2,524,000,000 consumed on the farms.

The largest items of cash income were $3,577,000,000 from dairy and poultry products, $2,740,000,000 from meats, $1,682,000,000 from fruits and vegetables, and $1,565,000,000 from grains. Incomes from potatoes, dairy products and meats, and animals more than offset the declines in income from grains and cotton. Incomes from dairy and poultry products and fruits and vegetables were 2½ times the income from grains; and about 90 per cent of the incomes from these two sources came from sales in the American market.

Wages paid out by the farmers amounted to about $1,216,000,000; raw materials, repairs and maintenance amounted to $3,076,000,000; taxes, $635,000,000; rent paid by those who leased farms, $1,127,000,000; and interest, $758,000,000. Rent and interest made a big hole in the net return of agriculture for 1925-26.

With rent and interest included, the figures, according to the Department of Agriculture, show a rate of return on the capital invested and management of only 4.6 per cent, and an average net return per farm of only $879. The rents and interest payments are altogether out of proportion to the results obtained for labor, time and capital.

The three great burdens of the farmers are taxes, rents and interest. Taxes can be reduced by the State and local governments.

Rented farms, if the rents are payable in cash, are poor propositions; if rented on shares the plan is not so bad. Interest can be lightened only through government organizations for the assistance of farmers. The interest charge is extra heavy now because so many farms were bought on time at inflated prices during and after the war.

Farmers, like all debtors, suffer when their debts are paid in dollars and not in commodities. A manufacturer who contracts a debt payable in dollars always loses when he settles, if it takes more of what he manufactures to exchange for the dollar. A debtor nation contracting a debt in dollars finds that settlement requires more goods and more service than if the debt was payable in goods or services.

This illustrates the necessity of maintaining a steady unit of monetary measure, and avoiding all currency inflation; and a steady and normal rate of international exchange. Farmers suffer when currency inflation raises prices abnormally, because reaction is bound to follow. Debts payable under those conditions always require more goods, more commodities and more service. In this respect the farmers do not suffer alone.

Our idea of an ultra-righteous man is a shoe dealer opposing the Charleston on principle.

EXPANDING WASHINGTON.

Ratification by the Arlington county civic federation of the plan for a conference between the federation of citizens' associations of the District of Columbia, the Montgomery county civic federation and the Arlington body, will speed to completion the formation of an organization so necessary to insure the proper future development of the city. As Washington grows, it becomes increasingly apparent that its problems extend beyond the District lines. More and more the public is concerned with what has become known as the metropolitan area.

There has been no organized body to consider and solve problems of mutual interest to the city of Washington, nearby Virginia and nearby Maryland. Harmonious development of the future Capital City, which will of necessity embrace territory outside the District lines, inevitably would have been delayed. It is fortunate that the suburban area has developed thus far in a manner highly creditable to its citizens, and without any serious differences of opinion having arisen between its officials and the District government. It is to be hoped that the proposed interfederation conference will help to assure future harmonious development.

The thing that did more than anything else to popularize sleeping porches was pajamas.

SUZANNE A PROFESSIONAL.

Lovers of tennis in the United States will learn with sincere regret that Suzanne Lenglen, superstar star of the courts, has become a professional and henceforth will commercialize her wonderful skill. She has signed a contract under an American manager and will leave France late in September for a four months' invasion of this and contiguous countries.

That she will prove a drawing card no one will doubt. This venture should bring profits to the man who has persuaded her to forsake the ranks of amateurs, and Mlle. Lenglen may return to her native land with a competence. But if the advent of Suzanne into the professional field makes impossible a return match between her and Helen Wills there will be great disappointment among American followers of the game.

In the coming contests the opponents of the French star, it is announced, will be some of the best known tennis experts in the countries visited. A game in which Suzanne Lenglen wields a racket will be worth going far to see, and, unless this somewhat erratic young lady permits her occasional "temperamental" indispositions to interfere, her journey across the United States will be one of triumph. Every sport throughout the land, and that includes practically all of us, will wish her good luck.

while every tennis player will seek to gaze upon an exhibition of that marvelous skill about which he has read so much.

Americans lead the world in saving time and in being bored for want of something to do.

THE PRESIDENT'S VACATION.

President Coolidge went to Plymouth, Vt., yesterday, for a few days' stay at his boyhood home. There he can mingle with old friends, and find real rest and freedom from intrusion.

It is regrettable that the President of the United States can not close his desk, turn his office over temporarily to subordinates when vacation time comes, and go off just as the thousands of John Smiths go and enjoy himself in his own way without being pursued by politicians and troubled with affairs of state. Some of these burdens of his office can not be laid aside by the President; he must give attention to certain matters connected with the government, but the load could be very substantially lightened if politicians would have a heart.

There never yet has been a chief executive whose summer retreat has not been the mecca for statesmen and politicians seeking to further their personal interests. This should be tabooed. While in Washington it sometimes is difficult to differentiate between the private and public activities of the occupant of the White House, but when he goes away for rest and recreation he is entitled to all the rights and privileges of a private citizen.

Reports from White Pine camp indicate that Mr. Coolidge, between fishing hours, has been in numerous conferences with statesmen from all sections of the country, many of whom found it convenient to establish summer quarters in the Adirondacks after it was learned the President had chosen that pleasure ground for his outing. The President probably has been busier with these "conversations" than he has desired, and has found it impossible to deny the leaders of his own party the privilege of "talking things over." If, however, he is to return to Washington refreshed and ready for the arduous duties of the coming winter, he must be permitted to rest and idle around in his own way and not be subjected to the importunities of politicians.

Americanism: "Well, well; let me have that higher-priced one. And charge it, please."

SUMMER CAMPS SAVING CHILD LIFE.

During these midsummer days, when all who are able to do so are getting away to the open country, to the mountains or the seashore, there is one thought which must go far toward making these outings happier for those Washingtonians who have helped to swell the funds of the summer outings committee of the Associated Charities. That is the satisfaction of knowing that hundreds of boys and girls, as well as mothers and tiny babies, are also enjoying at some time during the heated season a two weeks' vacation either at Camp Good Will or at Camp Pleasant.

These two camps, the former on its new hilltop site in the delightful woods of the west side of Rock Creek park, and the other on the wooded hillside overlooking the Potomac at Blue Plains, have now been in operation steadily since July 1, and will be open until the end of August. Each two weeks a new party of campers is taken out of the city after the necessary examinations are made to insure the best physical and sanitary conditions at the camps, the number of each party varying from 130 to 180. Here for a fortnight all these children, including many infants who are cared for under the direction of a trained nurse in the well-equipped baby shack donated by the Kiwanis club, and a group of overworked mothers have the opportunity to taste the freedom of the country and to enjoy complete rest in the woods and fields.

This one big experience of an orderly life in the woods, with plenty of good food served three times a day, with a swimming pool and showers for cooling off after games and hikes, and comfortable cots in cool and airy tents—all this means health and character building. It means literally a saving of child life.

Public-spirited men and women are giving of their time and means to organize and carry on this splendid work. The summer outings committee for years has been headed by John Joy Edson. The committee's appeal for funds should meet with immediate and generous response. Remittances may be sent to Mr. Edson or to the treasurer, Harry G. Meem, Social Service house, 1022 Eleventh street northwest. It costs approximately $7 a week for each person cared for at either of these camps.

During the fiscal year ended June 30 last the mints coined 2,611,500 $20 gold pieces, and 1,014,000 gold eagles or $10 pieces. The total value of gold pieces coined in 1925-26 was $4,315,565.

According to a report from the Treasury the public debt was reduced $30,688,842 in July. Ordinary receipts of the Treasury during July reached $236,000,000, which was $41,000,000 in excess of July, 1925.

A vacation isn't worth much unless you have the comforting feeling that the business is suffering without you.

Eventually all of mankind will live in towns, and then the poor chiggers will starve to death.

If a picnic and washing the car won't bring rain, you can always get results by tearing off the old shingles to re-cover the roof.

The Worst Story I Heard Today—By Will Rogers

The Worst Joke I heard today was told in England by one of the natives. It is a little illustration of English tact. A lady was engaging a new Butler, and she impressed on the applicant the importance of tact.

"The great question is, have you tact? It needs great tact to handle my house. We have all kinds of guests."

"Lady, I am noted for my tact," replied the applicant.

"Well, will you give me an illustration of some of your tact?"

"Well, Madam, in my last place I was among various dubious dupes supposed to clean the nickelware on the bathroom faucets. One day on entering a bathroom, there, right before my very eyes, was a Lady standing just ready to enter the tub. What did I do? Ma'am! I just said, 'I beg your pardon Sir,' and withdrew."

Doherty Warns Delegates U.S. Is Setting Dangerous Pace in Use of Fuel.

RIDICULES REPORTS OF NEW DISCOVERIES

American, French and Italian Speakers Cite Coal Products as Likely Substitutes.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 4 (By A.P.)—Oil, the source of giant energy that has been a major factor in the world's progress, today was pictured before the Institute of Politics as a potential modern counterpart of Mars, the ancient god of war.

Five speakers—three Americans, a Frenchman and an Italian—agreed that oil was a major factor in the future peace of the world.

A warning that America is traveling a dangerous path in its "prodigal depletion" of the country's oil supply was sounded by Henry L. Doherty, public utilities magnate. Maintaining that from the viewpoint of national defense there is no substitute for petroleum, he said that predictions of discoveries about to be made "deserve no more credence than the ravings of a delirious invalid."

Asserting that the present laws of the United States prohibit the application of scientific methods to the production of oil, he said:

"Not even the knowledge possessed by an unskilled child can be used. There is little likelihood that we can maintain much longer even our present rate of oil production. Already we are using as much oil every year as Pennsylvania, long the banner oil producing State, has produced in 67 years."

He denied the practicability of substituting coal products for petroleum.

R. T. Haslam, professor of chemical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said that chemistry, by perfecting means of transforming coal into oil cheaply, would provide a great safeguard to international peace. He pictured a future when, by the use of this chemistry-made energy, smokeless cities could flourish under conditions of health and prosperity unknown today.

Three other speakers agreed that oil was a powerful factor in world peace. M. Justin duPont, French perfume manufacturer, said that France now has more liquid fuel than she uses, through the adoption of by-products with coal, and thus independent of the rest of the world in this respect. Umberto Pomilio, Italian electro chemical authority, saw in the conversion of coal into oil a solution of the problem of national defense, as well as cheap power for national development.

A. C. Fieldner, superintendent of the Bureau of Engineering station at Pittsburgh, Pa., said the problem of converting coal into oil was "one of national defense, for perfection of the processes would make each country independent as to oil."

The perennially blooming farce "Charley's Aunt" will inject decided novelty into the National Players' repertory program when on Monday night, they will begin a six-day engagement of that farce. The piece needs no other recommendation than that it holds the record for all time for the longest runs.

"Written 50 years ago, "Charley's Aunt" can rightly claim the kind of farce that you can't help from which the broader comedies have since sprung. It leads royalty among the farces and it still retains its original situation upon which its comedy is based as are logical though ridiculous, as the farce-fashioners of today turn out.

COLORS PRESENTED TO ARLINGTON POST IN PRESENCE OF 200

Ball Acts for Donor of Banner;
Flag Is Given by L. C.
McPherson.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST
Tel. Clap. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A stand of colors was presented to Arlington post, No. 139, American Legion, with impressive services last night at the Washington-Lee High school. More than 200 persons attended.

The ceremonies opened with invocation by the chaplain, the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, after which the assembly stood with bowed heads in solemn memory to the heroic dead.

The presentation of the post banner was made by State Senator Frank L. Bell on behalf of William P. Ames of Harrison, the donor.

"This is an unusual opportunity I have in presenting a flag to a body of men, but it is an honor to present this flag to members of Arlington post, No. 139, American Legion, an organization of men who in 1917 gave up all to preserve the honor of our country and our flag," he said.

The silk American flag was presented by the donor, L. C. McPherson, of Cherrystone, who briefly said that while he was not born under the flag, he loves it as do all good Americans.

The stand of colors was accepted on behalf of the post by W. Thomas French and T. W. Delehanty. Other speakers were Mrs. J. N. Steed, known to the American Legion men as "Mother Steed," who urged all organizations to stand behind the members of the legion and to assist in caring for the unfortunate boy who returned to the United States wounded.

Concluding the speaking, Commander J. D. McDonnell said:

"In the name of Arlington post, No. 139, American Legion, I dedicate these colors, which are to fly perpetually as the emblem of the cause for which once we fought, and which we are serving still. This is the flag of our country, beside it is the flag of the American Legion, bearing the emblem of our organization—the star of hope, the laurel wreath of victory, with the sun's rays about all to usher in the light of a brighter day. I dedicate these colors to the purposes of our post, and with them I dedicate this post to the eternal service of our nation and our flag."

Music was furnished by the bugle and drum corps of Costello post, of Washington.

There will be a meeting of the Straight-to-the-Bridge Boulevard association tomorrow night at the Clarendon community hall, according to an announcement last night by President Arthur Orr.

27 New York Doctors Indicted in Rum Case

New York, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Twenty-seven physicians, 36 druggists and 14 whisky agents were indicted today by the July Federal grand jury, which has been investigating an alleged "ring" of prohibition violators.

drawal of deposits of large sums of money by many Catholics. Government officials deny that this is true.

Officials of other banks, both foreign and Mexican, state that thus far their business has not been affected and that no withdrawals of deposits have occurred. These officials do not expect that funds will be withdrawn from their institutions because they feel that there will be no point in injuring non-government institutions. They believe that the only way Catholics could embarrass the government along this line would be to remove their deposits from the Bank of Mexico.

Although smaller crowds than usual went to the motion picture theaters and other theaters in Mexico City today, the business section had its ordinary crowds and the stores appeared to have their normal amount of trade.

Overtures for a truce having thus far been ineffective, many Catholics are concentrating their hopes on the economic boycott or general cessation of unnecessary expenditures which is intended to influence the government to modify its attitude.

Will Aid Government.

The confederation of chambers of commerce in Mexico City, the central body representing chambers all over the country, has informed the C. R. O. M. (regional confederation of labor), in answer to a query, that it will oppose the economic boycott and do its utmost to promote commerce and remain aloof from the religious controversy.

The confederation of chambers of industry, a similar organization, says it will cooperate in any movement seeking to protect industry.

Five members of the group arrested on charges of plotting to kill the president have been released. Others are held for examination, although officials are apparently convinced that the alleged conspiracy was not a grave affair.

The department of the interior, in a statement, denies that Secretary Tejeda and Bishop Diaz, secretary of the episcopate, conferred for a settlement of the religious question or in regard to a conciliation conference.

The statement characterized President Calles' program as "the appearance of a magnificent new culture developing throughout the world which will destroy the last

The statement says the government was forced to issue the religious regulations because the Catholic clergy refused to obey the constitution, the day upon which the regulations became effective, it adds, will become as glorious an anniversary as Mexican independence day, because it will mark the people's liberty from those "who, in the name of divinity, conspire and transgress the law constantly in order to reach more power and richness."

Alderman Salustio Deloy was killed yesterday by mob after he had fired a revolver into a crowd of Catholics watching the government agents close the annex of the church in Chilapa, state of Guerrero, according to dispatches received here.

One Priest Submits.

Father Dimas Anguiano, a Catholic priest, of Alvarado, state of Vera Cruz, has written a letter to President Calles accepting the government's religious regulations and the mayor of Alvarado has been ordered to return to Father Dimas.

Famed Guadalupe Crown
Now Reported Missing

Mexico City, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Government authorities are investigating a report that the gold and jeweled crown of Our Lady of Guadalupe, whose value is estimated at $800,000 pesos, is missing from the church in Guadalupe. When the revolutionaries entered Mexico City in 1915 church authorities, fearing looters, placed the crown in the vaults of the church and substituted a less costly one, which the image has worn since. It is now reported that the municipal committee making an inventory of church property has been unable to find the original crown.

FIVE DIRECTORS ELECTED

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Asserting that the Mexican embassy in Washington was "spreading propaganda" against the Catholic Church, the Rev. Richard B. Washington, Hot Springs, Va., in addressing the Supreme council, Knights of Columbus, in annual convention today, urged that some action be taken to stop the alleged practice. He said the religious situation in Mexico was comparable to the "slavery of ancient Rome."

A special committee appointed by the convention to consider the Mexican situation probably will make its report tomorrow.

Joseph Scott, of Los Angeles, speaking at a luncheon tendered to delegates by the Rotary club, declared that "restoration of the home" and old-fashioned family life was essential to the preservation of society in this country.

Five supreme directors were elected for three years at the annual business session. They are Edward Houlahan, Chicago; Leo F. Craig, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.; James W. Gibbons, Topeka, Kans.; Thomas P. White, Los Angeles, and J. C. Mullane, Sioux City.

The Service Charge on Checking Accounts

Every story must have a hero. Ours is old, commonplace John Doe. John walked into the butcher's shop to buy some steak. He laid down a half-dollar and carried away a small brown package. Now John knew his package didn't contain a whole half-dollar's worth of steak. He was aware that the meat probably didn't cost the butcher over 30 cents. The rest went to pay the butcher's rent, his light bill, his clerk and finally his own profit. To John this seemed perfectly proper and he was satisfied.

A few blocks down the street, John walked into his bank. The cashier greeted him with some news. "John," he said, "you have a checking account here that averages less than two hundred dollars and you draw a dozen or more checks a month. We furnish you with a pass book, check books, deposit slips, a statement of your account and sundry miscellaneous services. We have invested heavily in vaults to keep your money safely; we hire tellers to take in your deposits and pay your checks; we pay bookkeepers to furnish you a nice record of your account. Now, John, all this costs money, yet your account produces less than a dollar gross income each month. You can see for yourself, John, that we are losing money on that account."

John saw the point, so he inquired "What do you want me to do about it?" "Well," said the cashier, "we expect you to do one of two things; either keep a balance large enough to meet our expense in handling your account or authorize us to charge your account each month that it falls below the balance required with the small sum necessary to cover our loss. We won't attempt to make a profit like your butcher and baker, but we shall try at least to break even."

"You are entirely right," said John. "When my balance can't earn interest enough to carry its expense, I certainly want to pay its way. It's worth something to me to have my money safe and be able to pay my bills by check."

John is our hero, but he is merely one of thousands in the great army of fair-minded people who would not willingly cause a loss to anyone and who are not asking for charity.

The service charge or a compensating balance is the fair solution of the problem of small checking accounts. We are sure that you, like John Doe, see the justice of this requirement.

Savings accounts do not fall under this rule.

INSULL AND CROWE DEFIDENT AT SENATE PRIMARY INQUIRY

mittting he had given Roy O. West $10,000 for the Doneen group.

The questions put to Prosecutor Crowe related to the source of the $15,000 he collected for Joseph P. Savage, the Crowe-Barrett candidate for county judge. Mr. Crowe declined to say whether he obtained any money from Mr. Insull, or whether any of this $15,000 came from Mr. Insull.

It was a rare exhibition of cross-examination. While blocked for the day the clever and calculating lawyer from Missouri appeared to enjoy the sweating process of Mr. Insull, the utility giant, shrewd, composed and careful, who finally said he would "cling to his life preserver—my attorney's opinion."

Mr. Crowe was quick and evasive, ducking here and dodging there and the battle ended with the local prosecutor insisting he had answered questions which Senator Reed declared he had not.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, as a witness, painted a picture of the crookedness and corruption in the last primary with its alleged ballot-box stuffing, short pencil cheating, kidnaping and imprisoning of judges and clerks and the work of gunmen and sluggers who drove election officials from polling places. Correspondents of Eastern newspapers gasped in surprise.

The county judge, in reply to a question, asserted that in the last primary a fair opportunity was given in some districts to cast a ballot and have it honestly counted, but in other districts that was not true.

As a contrast, Ira C. Copley, of Aurora, who sold out control of the Western United Gas & Electric Co. last January, told the details clearly of his contribution of $25,000 to the Frank J. Smith campaign. He asserted that he had never asked Allen F. Moore, Smith campaign manager, to suppress his name and contribution. While he aided Smith, he said that he is not an anti-world court enthusiast.

The hearing as a show was capped with an amusing incident when C. F. Lowrie, State secretary of the Progressive party, insisted upon putting in the record that its candidate for the United States Senate, Parley Parker Christensen, "had not received a dollar of utility cash." Asked how much his fund amounted to, the witness said that $503.82 was collected and $559.69 was spent.

COAL MINERS' UNION DRIFTING TO CRISIS IN OPEN SHOP MOVE

Nearly 70 Per Cent of Bituminous Mined Is From Nonunion Fields.

WEST VIRGINIA LOST TO ORGANIZED LABOR

Kentucky Solidly Closed to It; Ohio and Illinois are Following in Wake.

By WILLIAM P. HELM, Jr.
So strong has been the sweep of the soft coal industry throughout the country toward the open shop within the past 90 days that today from 60 to 70 per cent of all the bituminous mines is estimated, comes from nonunion fields. And as the appeal of the open shop seems to be growing stronger every day, it is becoming more and more apparent that the nation's largest trade union, the United Mine Workers of America, is drifting fast toward a crisis of gravest import.

Take West Virginia, for instance, that battleground of the coal unions for more than 25 years. Millions of miners' money have been spent to spread the gospel of unionism in West Virginia. Stanch union supporters have laid down their lives for the cause. At times there have been pitched battles fought within her borders between union and nonunion forces. Coal cars have been converted into miniature arsenals during the stirring days gone by and her streams have run crimson from the conflict.

It was but a few years ago that the union had a following in West Virginia which constantly was inching its way further into open shop territory. But now, since the Jacksonville wage scale, continuing the high wages of 1920, has been in effect for several years, West Virginia has changed. There is today, your correspondent is informed, only one company within the State which operates on a union wage agreement and that company is not among the biggest coal producers. With that solitary exception, West Virginia has gone over, bag and baggage, to the open shop.

Drift Toward Open Shop.

Kentucky, too, is solidly nonunion. At the expense of the union fields just to her north across the Ohio river, her open-shop production has mounted until at the moment she runs neck and neck with Illinois for third place among the coal-producing States.

Western Pennsylvania broke away from the old central competitive field about two years ago. Since then many of her largest operations have resumed work on an open-shop basis, disregarding the Jacksonville wage agreement to the extent of a 35 per cent cut. Among the great Pennsylvania coal companies, only one remains but now open shop is the Pittsburgh Coal Co., largest in the world. Some of the big companies in northwestern Pennsylvania likewise have gone over to the open-shop ranks.

These moves have been made against the strenuous opposition of the union. Operators making them held that they could not pay the wages agreed to at Jacksonville and compete with nearby nonunion mines. Mine union leaders refused to accept a cut. So the mines shut down; notices were thereafter posted stating that they would reopen at wage scales substantially below the Jacksonville scale, and in time the work was resumed. Idle miners slowly came back to their livelihood and at the present time most of these open-shop districts are mining considerable coal and selling it in competition with other nonunion coal.

Union Waging Losing Fight.

As the movement spreads Ohio seems destined to be the next State to go nonunion. If so, it will be followed quickly by Indiana and Illinois, the trade believes, and then by Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma and other Southwestern States.

What of the union? Apparently it has already lost much of its power. Apparently it is facing its greatest fight to retain what power it now possesses. More than half of the bituminous mine workers of the country are working today, a summary disclosure, in nonunion territories. Of the one-half great strike in 1922, which closed down union mines for five months, about one-third of the mine workers of the country were employed in nonunion camps. Within four years the open shop has cut a big slice of workers from the union.

It was the union ascendancy in man-power and production that helped, perhaps as much as anything else, to bring about the signing of the Jacksonville wage agreement. When the Jacksonville agreement ends next March it would seem that the union will have lost that ascendancy. It will no longer be able to prevent the mining of enough coal to meet all requirements of industries and besides, according to present indications. Hence the overwhelming domination by the union of American coal mines will no longer be a factor in making an agreement to succeed the present one.

At Jacksonville the union operators felt that the government wanted them to sign up a long-term contract with their men. Rightly or wrongly, the operators felt that through Secretary Hoover the White House had intimated that it wanted to see the agreement signed. So they signed and not long afterward, when the open shop mines began to cut into union markets, the operators had a change of heart.

Hoover Keeps Hands Off.

Hoover's name became unpopular in operator councils. The unpopularity grew to lusty proportions. Mr. Hoover felt that the industry had been unkind, at least, in its running away from him, and is reported to have made a decision to refrain from mixing in any more coal labor troubles. Through energetic measures, Hoover saved the coal consumers of the country many millions of dollars after the strike of 1922. This appeared to have been forgotten afterward.

The miners turned to Hoover when the operators turned away from him. In Hoover and Pinchot, the union leaders feel today that they have two strong friends. But Hoover will not be on hand next winter when operators and miners sit down to frame a new wage agreement—if they do sit down then on any such assignment—unless there will have been a complete change in his policy.

Thus the union will have neither dominance in production nor governmental champion. It will have to accept a wage cut or refuse to work. The last thing in the minds of operators today is the continuance of the present wage scale. Unless there is a complete change of heart, the operators will not agree to it. The union then can take the alternative and strike.

But what will it avail the union men to strike if nonunion fields can supply all needs without union help? The answer to this question is distributed union leaders today. It hasn't been found to fit any words that ring pleasantly in union ears.

DOES YOUR MOTHER WANT GRAY HAIR?

Simple Tonic Keeps Scalp Healthy—Hair Never Turns Gray.

GRAY HAIR MAKES HER LOOK SO OLD

A drug store manager told a customer recently—if you know your mother well enough to really know how she feels about her gray hair, you'll take home to her a bottle of this Lea's Hair Tonic."

Young folks tell mother frequently how she looks when she gets old how about her own private feelings this age of youth and "pep".

Not one husband, son or daughter in a hundred ever tried to actually learn just how mother does feel about gray hair deep down in her heart.

You can't imagine how delighted people get when they see a woman hair taking on new life, luster and beauty and the gray hairs have come back to an even rich tone with the tonic as they will do with Lea's Hair Tonic.

Independently rich women use Lea's year after year with the same delight, results, and just because mother isn't wealthy is no reason she shouldn't have her hair looking at its best and free of gray hair if she uses Lea's Hair Tonic.

Young mothers complain of how about her own private feelings this age of youth and "pep".

Not one husband, son or daughter in a hundred ever tried to actually learn just how mother does feel about gray hair deep down in her heart.

Lea's Hair Tonic isn't one of those old-time stains, tints, or dye that look good at first and then—oh—my goodness!—go bad. It is a special compound as a scalp and hair treatment. Let mother try a bottle on some hidden spot for two weeks—then watch her blossom out looking years younger and more beautiful. She may even use it year after year every now and then after a shampoo. It's wonderful. WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

They Defend the Men.

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: A recent article in your column entitled "Wanted—One Decent Man," evidently written by a young Miss of about 19 years, is decidedly too broad and as I am a man who has always tried to be decent and a gentleman on all occasions, I feel called on to defend at least part of the male forces.

"When my eyes met those four words, 'Wanted—One Decent Man,' I was startled and my immediate thought was, had the men of the world gone that far toward the devil, just what qualities a man needed to be 'decent.'

"Next my eyes met the lines, 'I have never in all my life met a decent fellow.' I was equally startled. Surely things are not that bad or perhaps our young Miss has only a limited acquaintance."

"She says herself that she is refined, modest, reserved, attractive, pretty, brainy, sweet, has pretty clothes and a nice home. Well, all of that is to her credit and if she picks her company with little care probably she will eventually run into a decent man. There are some left. Remembering the old saying, 'When in Rome do as the Romans do,' and if you don't want to do as the Romans do—stay away from Rome."

"So before you make a date be kind of sure of the other part of the date. She says the men make her sick. Maybe so, but believe she is just a little bit peevish at someone and is taking her hurt out on all the men she knows. Did know, don't know and never will."

EARL Miss McDonald: Since reading the letter from the girl who "never met one decent man," my strongest desire has been (borrowing the writer's impression) to meet her face to face and say, "Here I am, a decent man. I want to make a date with you."

"Not a petting party; none of the sidewalk sheik stuff; just a good

MODISH MITZI

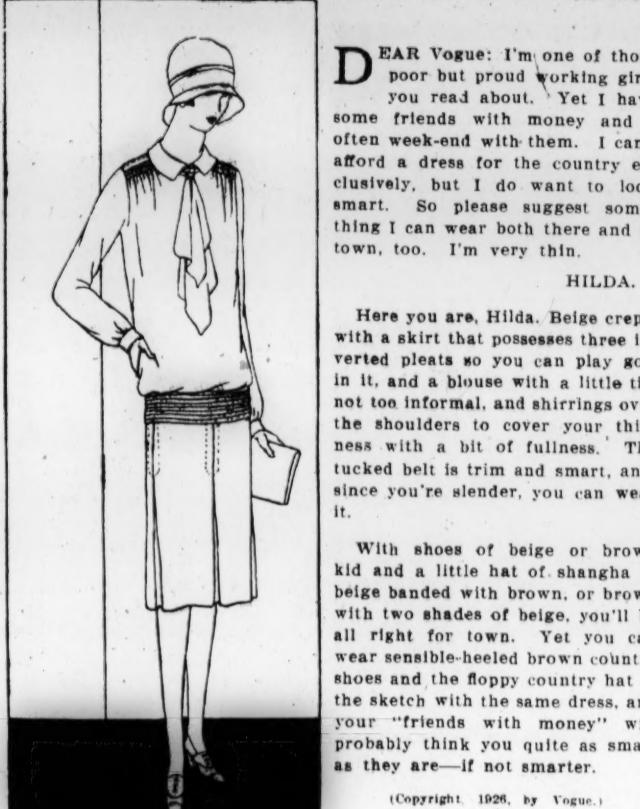

Mitzi has lost some of her luggage, which is why she looks so delightful. That means just one thing to Mitzi, that she must go out and buy more clothes and more luggage. It will be such fun, she tells Polly, to shop in Seattle, and she remembers several shop windows that had things in that she liked. If she can only find them!

FIVE COMPANIONABLE DOGS

By ROBERT S. LEMMON.

EACH breed of dog has some special characteristics which commends it above others to certain people, even though they are not particularly fond of some special work, like hunting, but simply want a fireside companion and a comrade for a walk. Personal taste, too, plays a large part in the selection—some people like long-haired dogs and others like a smooth coat—but between Jack Spratt and his wife all breeds have their enthusiastic friends and admirers.

The Samoyede is not yet as popular as he is going to be when his many virtues are better known. He is clothed in a glistening white and for a long time was the premier sledge dog of Siberia and many polar expeditions. He has been called the ideal family dog, for though by no means lacking in spirit, he seems to be free of any tendency to test his teeth on a human being. One who knows him well speaks of him as the "bitless dog"—a tribute, indeed.

The bulldog is the clown of dogdom, handsomely of face and figure but faultless and guaranteed to cure any case of the blues in five minutes. Contrary to the opinion of those who do not know him the bulldog is one of the most lovable and loving of dogs and the expression of languishing sentiment that sometimes adorns his wrinkled face and bowed legs is hugely entertaining and secretly touching to his master.

The chow is an Oriental gentleman who has in a few years established himself firmly in the heart of dog-loving America. He is aristocratic in bearing and evinces strong reserve toward strangers, but with his master or mistress he shows a chumminess that is a flattering contrast with his haughty manner to outsiders. In red, black or blue he is truly handsome.

Now we come to smaller matters among them the dachshund.

From time immemorial he has served as the butt of comic cartoonists and humorists generally. In the view of the family he is the living embodiment of the "hot dog," and truth to tell, there is something incredible about him at first glance—such impossible short legs and unbelievably long sleek body. But he is a dog that grows swiftly on the beholder.

Watch him run about on those stubby legs for a few minutes—notice the long satiny ears and the mild and intelligent gaze. You may laugh at him first but if you are exposed to his charm for an hour or two you may find yourself leading him home on a leash.

Last and smallest is the Pekinese, the dog that is probably more at home in an apartment than any other. Certainly he is not a sport model and he was never designed for a rough country life. He seems perfectly at home picking his

DEAR Vogue: I'm one of those poor but proud working girls you read about. Yet I have some friends with money and I often week-end with them. I can't afford a dress for the country exclusively, but I do want to look smart. So please suggest something I can wear both there and in town, too. I'm very thin.

HILDA.

Here you are, Hilda. Beige crepe, with a skirt that possesses three inverted pleats so you can play golf in it, and a blouse with a little tie, not too informal, and shirrings over the shoulders to cover your thinness with a bit of fullness. The tucked belt is trim and smart, and, since you're slender, you can wear it.

With shoes of beige or brown kid and a little hat of shanghai in beige banded with brown, or brown with two shades of beige, you'll be all right for town. Yet you can wear sensible-heeled brown country shoes and the floppy country hat in the sketch with the same dress, and your "friends with money" will probably think you quite as smart as they are—if not smarter.

The object of this article is to acquaint physicians and people generally with the fact that sand dust can cause a disease of the lungs which easily mistakes for consumption, but which is not. Furthermore, this sand dust lung trouble may prove fatal, though it generally causes a prolonged invalidism without great tendency toward death.

The symptoms of this sand dust lung disease are somewhat similar to those of consumption. There are a cough, production of sputum—sometimes bloody sputum—shortness of breath, and pallor. The X-ray picture of the lungs looks very much like the X-ray picture shown by a consumptive lung. In fact, Thayer thought many of the mistakes made with the soldiers, in diagnosing them as consumptives, were due to mistaking the nature of the shadows in X-ray pictures of the lungs.

MAKING USE OF YOUR MIRROR.

Beauty and You

By Viola Paris.

THE mirror has always played an important role in the daily lives of women, ever since they stopped using burnished metal disks and took to the kindly invention of looking-glass. It is known as the symbol of vanity. And yet, it, after all, a vain frippery, and nothing more?

So long as we lead worldly lives we must utilize worldly accessories. And, to the feminine population, one of the most necessary of these is the mirror. No one needs a glass disc for the purpose of staring into it and rapidly admiring the reflection. But we do need mirrors in various forms as our guides and critics in this very vital matter of beauty.

"More grand opera music is played in the larger motion-picture houses each day," he said, "than is played by grand opera orchestras in a week. We play grand music four times a day, week days, and five times Sunday. The grand opera orchestra hardly ever plays a program more than three times a week."

"A public demand for more and better music has been recognized. Eight years of patient work, interpreting the emotions of the movies, as only grand opera music can do, created the demand."

"Day after day, showing sometimes slap stick comedy to the tune of the Ride of the Valkyries; love scenes to strains from 'Tristan and Isolde,' and Charlie Chaplin's antics to Debussy's 'Girl of the Flaxen Hair,' the moving-picture orchestras have given audiences a taste for classical music that many of them would have formerly disdained. Great music consequently has found a new significance and importance. It gives motion pictures dramatic intensity."

Don't forget to use your mirror; it mustn't be just a decorative ornament. It will serve you as a friend and warn you of disfiguring lines and blemishes in time to avoid them.

Do you take careful scrutiny of the back of your head each time you dress? This is highly important, for although you may not be conscious of the fact, other people look as intently at you from the back as from the front. A beautiful arrangement of the coiffure over the brow can not compensate for straggly wisps of hair or a crooked part in the back.

Tomorrow Viola Paris will describe how to care for the hair between shampooes.

STANDARD OIL DIVIDEND INCREASES EXPECTED

Sentiment of Directors Held to Lean Toward Liberal Distribution of Profits.

GAINS IN LOCAL MARKET

By F. W. PATTERSON.
The Washington financial district and local holders of Standard Oil of New Jersey stock yesterday were discussing with considerable interest the reports that a change in the company's dividend policy might result at the director's meeting to be held on August 16.

The general policy of the company has been to put its earnings into the property, but sentiment of the directors, according to the reports, leans toward a more liberal treatment of holders of the common stock through disbursement of a greater proportion of the profits. Some estimates from those usually well informed were that an extra cash dividend of 25 cents a share in addition to the regular dividend of that amount, would be declared.

Another important matter believed to be scheduled for discussion at the coming board meeting is the retirement of the company's preferred stock. The issue of $199,972,900 is callable on any quarterly dividend payment date after not less than 30 days' notice, at $115. The preferred dividends now require about $14,000,000 annually, plus Federal taxes on that amount of net, and it is believed that the company could finance retirement of the preferred in such a way as to lessen the annual charge. The position of the common-stock holders would naturally be much improved by retirement of the preferred.

Bank Talks Well Liked.

The advertising committee of the District Bankers association, responsible for the series of cooperative educational advertisements sponsored by the association published in the Washington newspapers, is regretful that the final statement of the bank talks is appearing this week.

Realizing the great advantage in a more complete understanding between the public and the local financial institutions, the District Bankers' association undertook a campaign of education or informative publication setting forth the essential functions of the bank in its relation to the community and the individual.

There were nine informative articles presented in the form of attractive advertising and all were essentially different from the ordinary run of such matter. The subjects discussed were: "The Bank's Place in the Community," "Who Owns the Banks?" "Salary—42 Cents a Month," "The Journey of a Bank Check," "The Facts About Bank Overdrafts," "How a Bank Makes Money Work," "How Bank Credit Is Granted," "What Determines Interest Rates?" "The Service Charge on Checking Accounts."

While cooperative advertising by banks is not new, the plan was a novelty here, and the experiment has more than justified the belief that newspaper publicity is far-reaching. Numerous banking associations, both city and State, have been in touch with the campaign, and the encouraging reports sent them are to result in cooperative bank advertising, wherever banking groups are interested in educational campaigns.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Aug. 4 (By A. P.)—Improving weather and crop advances seemed responsible for somewhat more general and aggressive selling in the cotton market here today and a break in the market followed December contracts sold off 10c to 12c, making a decline of 74 points from the recent high level and a net loss of 40 points. These losses were lowest, with the general market steady at net declines of 42 to 49 points.

The market held fairly steady during the earlier trading. After opening unchanged to 3 points lower, price moved to 10c to 12c more than yesterday's closing quotation in sympathy with relative easy Liverpool cables and reports of better weather. The market then turned, early offerings were fairly steady as prices approached the 17 1/2 cent mark for December, but selling began again after the 17 1/2 cent mark placing the condition of the crop at 67.9 and the indicated yield at 14,900,000 bales. The weekly weather report showed a further decline in other unfavorable features in the Eastern belt but was evidently regarded as indicating an improvement.

Some cotton, after the favorable construction was also put on the detailed weather reports for the day. Most of the selling on the decline which followed was attributed to liquidation or realization by recent sellers, but local selling for a reaction also took place. In the immediate market there was selling here attributed to hedging stocks of old crop cotton in New Jersey and 24 while March sold off to 17.42, making reactions of 77 to 93 points from the high level touched toward the end of last month. Price cables attributed the decline in Liverpool to hedging, local and continental liquidation. Early sales, 5,672 bales, totalled 17,765, as far as the market port stocks, 6,366. United States port stocks: 6,366.

CALUMET & ARIZONA

Calumet and Arizona Mining Company

The Calumet and Arizona Mining Co., which was incorporated in 1925 for the purpose of taking over the assets and business of an organization of similar name incorporated in 1901, is an operating company for mining, smelting and refining copper. The company's property is located in Arizona and while producing costs are relatively high, a controlling interest in the new Cornelia Copper Co., which can show profits on 13-cent copper, is owned. The Calumet and Arizona Mining Co. also controls Verde Central Mines, Inc. It is interesting to note that every dollar paid on the new Cornelia stock is equal to almost $2 per share on the outstanding stock of the Calumet and Arizona Mining Co.

During the ten years ending in 1925, the Calumet and Arizona Mining Co. earned net profits which averaged 1.18 per share annually on the capital stock. Earnings in 1925 were equal to $1.66 as compared with 67 cents in 1924 and 78 cents in 1923. At the time of last report an excellent financial condition was shown. Dividends have been paid on the capital stock without interruption for more than 20 years, the rate ranging between $2 and $16.50 per share. The present rate is $4 per share per year. June of this year an extra dividend of 50 cents was paid.

TWIN MARKET LEADERS REACT FROM NEW HIGHS

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1926.

American Can Joins in an Upward Rush; Closing Prices Are Day's Lowest.

MOTORS STORY IS DENIED

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Aug. 4.—With General Motors and United States Steel common again the leaders still touching new record heights before resuming their profit-taking selling and closing at net recessions of 7 and 2 points, respectively, the New York Stock Exchange experienced another big day of stock dealings today. The turnover was some 300,000 shares under that of Tuesday's hectic session, but topped 2,550,000 shares.

As usual the market started with a rush. American Can joined the bull market's twin leaders at the outset in selling at a new high price for all time. Simultaneously the premier automobile stock and the foremost standard industrial also touched new tops, but that demonstration seemed to be the cue for another great wave of profit-taking and the many other issues of the leaders and the many other issues which had followed them up, reacted rather sharply.

Thereafter the market backed and filled in the feverish manner typical of bull movements. Trading broadened into departments hitherto neglected and volume of transactions was very large.

In the final moments of the trading the selling movement became more general. At the close prices were around the low levels of the day for most of the active issues and numerous net losses of from 2 to 7 points were showing.

Deals in General Motors continued to absorb most attention. The stock opened at 214 1/2, up a record and the high quotation of record. Profiting thereon in which caused a reaction of about 9 points. Thereafter the market for the stock was very irregular on an enormous turnover. In the meanwhile, about midday, J. P. Morgan & Co. gave out a statement received by wireless from Thomas Cochran, the partner recently quoted as making bullish predictions on General Motors. The statement said:

"In response to inquiries made of me by a ship news reporter upon my sailing from New York on a holiday, I spoke with enthusiasm of the earnings, management and prospects of the General Motors Corporation. I authorized no statement of any kind as to the future price of the stock, which obviously no one can foretell."

General Motors, which had been selling around 211 just prior to issuance of the Cochran statement, reacted suddenly to 206 1/2. However, the market was full of buying orders, which rapidly rallied the price in the later trading to 214. In the last hour selling move, the recovery was wiped out by profit-taking, and the price dropped to 205 1/2, but closed a point up from that level, which was the day's high.

Aside from the Cochran statement, the principal news of the day was the weekly trade reviews on the steel industry, which, as heretofore, were very favorable, and the declaration of an extra dividend by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. The fluctuations in General Motors were followed by stocks generally. United States Steel common, which had sold at 153 1/2 at the opening, recovered on a 3 point reaction on appearance of the steel review—but sank back again later.

Independent steel stocks were strong most of the day, notably Republic, which recently received dividends, but these, too, yielded in the late trading. General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Case Threshing Machine and others registered new high quotations for the year and held some of their improvement. Merchandising issues were stimulated by news bearing on trade. Montgomery Ward, which reported a gain in earnings during July, recovered strongly. Baldwin Locomotive had rallied up several points and independent Locomotive followed it, but neither held up.

Oil shares made a poor response to the dividend news, but copper developed greater activity. Kenneth sold within a fraction of its high for the year.

Railroad shares also were backward, although car loadings for the week of July 24 broke all records for the year.

The money market was distinctly easier, as the recent special demand subsided. Renewals of call loans were arranged at 4 1/4 per cent. In the afternoon the rate dropped to 4 per cent, as the supply largely in excess of demand. Time deposit rates were easier in unison, being offered, but rates were not quite so changed.

French francs boomed upward to 2.99 cents, a new high for the day, overtaking, but subsequently yielded 9 points on this closing but 17 1/2 points net higher. Belgian francs rallied 13 points further, and lire about 5 points, while sterling and Scandinavian rates were firm, but pesetas receded 16 points further.

COUP PLANNED WITH JACK BAUR AT CHICAGO TRACK

Collyer Likes Quesada in Sixth

Word Given to String Along With Titan at Saratoga.

Old Slip Expected to Beat Out Overall at Coney Island.

By BERT E. COLLYER.

JACK BAUR. The hard boots from down in Kentucky hope to mop up with this good sprinter from the Baker stable at Chicago today. Was breasted through three-eighths in 0.37 the other morning with its mouth wide open. Goes in the fifth spasm.

Charley Koerner has found a good spot for BETTER LUCK in the fifth race. Commissioners were kept busy during the night planting the dough.

Another hot one at the same course is QUESADA in the sixth. That last effort went for Sweeny, the man who maniacs the morgue.

Down at Saratoga, where the track is drying out and promises to be fast for the first time since the meeting opened, the good word is to string with TITAN in the fifth race. Commissioners have been planted in New Jersey, a wise move.

Also have some strong information on ZELDA LEIGHTON in the opening contest. This is a right good mare just now.

The Coney Island special is PUREDEE in the first race. Tom Sanford has the old gelding in rare shape, and the books at Cincinnati are loaded to the guards.

OLD SLIP and OVERALL meet in the day's feature, and if the track dries out, expect to see OLD SLIP romp home with the big end of the horse.

Another one you all have been waiting for is FICO in the seventh race. Was scratched the other day to go here, and word has gone out to let the family jewels.

More anon.

Straight Dime Fare On 16th Street Bus Asked by Company

Tells Commissioners That Six Tokens for 50 Cents Is Unprofitable.

Service-at-Cost Basis Proposed Alternative

Rapid Transit Says Present Year's Operation Shows $8,000 Deficit.

U. S. To Spend $81,740 On Repairs to Capitol

Additional Sums Will Be Expended on the Grounds and Sidewalks.

Library to Be Improved

A general repair and renovation program for the Capitol was announced by David Lynn, Capitol architect, yesterday, and $81,740 will be spent in repairs alone. The building will be cleaned and repainted in October.

Voluntary Reduction Cited.

Recent history of the company is recited. The fare prior to January was five tokens for 45 cents, or 10 cents for single fares. The present management, immediately after taking over operation of the buses offered voluntarily to try six fares for 50 cents for trial period of three months. This offer was made at a public hearing that had been called to canvass the question of reducing fares, following reports that large profits had accrued to the company in 1925.

The petition recites that several items in accounting had been improperly applied, with the result of making the 1925 profits seem higher than they actually were.

At the end of the three-month trial period it was decided to continue the reduced fare for another three months. It is set forth in the petition that the figures for the first six months of the present calendar year show an operating deficit of around $8,000.

Boy Scout, Dressed For Camp, Vanishes

Dressed in a Boy Scout uniform, with a camping kit over his shoulder, Alton Wise, Jr., 15 years old, disappeared from his home at 56 Woodstock street, Clarendon, Va., early Tuesday morning. He told a playmate he was "going to Richmon."

Washington police were asked yesterday to look for the boy. His parents think it possible he may be trying to reach the home of his grandfather in Elba, Ala., although he had no money. He was dependent over his failure to pass examination at the summer classes at Central High school, his mother said yesterday.
